Forecast For Scotland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Wednesday 29 Sep 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Mostly dry with sunny spells. Scattered showers in west. Breezy.

Today:
A lot of dry, bright weather with sunny spells. Last of overnight rain clearing from Shetland this morning, but scattered showers will continue to affect parts of western Scotland. It will be a cool, breezy day.

Tonight:
Dry, clear and chilly at first. Rain and strong southerly winds reaching West Coast early tonight, extending eastwards later. Rain becoming heavy for a time over south and west Scotland.

Thursday:
Rain clearing eastwards during morning but lingering over Shetland during afternoon. Drier weather following with some sunshine but also showers for western Scotland.

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Areas of low pressure passing close to Scotland, so an unsettled few days. Showers or longer spells of rain, some heavy and windy at times too, especially on Sunday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.